NEW RELEASE - IN MODERN DANISH - OF IMPORTANT SØREN KIERKEGAARD-WORK

Postscript to the Philosophical Crumbs is one of the writer and philosopher Søren Kierkegaard's (1813-1855) central religious-philosophical works.

We meet Kierkegaard in a sharp dispute with the German philosopher Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel (1770-1831) systems thinking. We are presented with Kierkegaard two forms of religiosity: Respectively, A and B, and one finds Kierkegaard's analysis of the possibility of an eternal objectivity - and the opposite, and an analysis of the difference between irony and humor.

It is in this book that Kierkegaard tells how he in Frederiksberg Garden in Copenhagen, while he smoked a cigar, decided that he wanted to be a writer. In addition signify Kierkegaard in the book that it is he who is the author of the pseudonymous writings such as the major work: Either-Or (1843) and Stages on the road of life (1845).

It is the writer and philosopher, MA. Jens Staubrand who closely and sensitively have changed Søren Kierkegaard's text into modern Danish.

The publication is supported by the Politiken-Foundation. Thank you for staying in Brecht's house in Svendborg during working on the book.
